

Why does the child want to learn?

Many parents can not explain to the child that you need to learn well. Just children, because of their young age, do not understand much. The best way is to interest the child. For example, agree that if the child finishes the academic year without triples, he will receive what he wants (for example, a good bike about which he has long dreamed of). Also, if the child himself does not cope, it must necessarily help him, but it is necessary to do it carefully and competently. Sometimes it turns out that parents helping to fulfill the child homework are fond of and do everything for him, so it is not possible to do so, you need to do everything myself and you can only suggest and explain what it is not clear to him. There is still a category of parents who absolutely do not know how to help the child, if a child does not understand something when performing lessons, they begin to shout at him instead of being intelligible to explain. Such an approach completely knocks off the child every desire to learn. If you feel about such a category or you simply do not have time for all this, there are people who do it professionally and you can always contact them.
